This study aimed to determine the factors affecting students' involvement in school organizations of selected students in GEANHS-Bailen in order to come up with recommended programs and activities to encourage more students to participate in different school organizations. The researchers administered researchers-made questionnaires to 50 student-respondents which are currently members of school organizations.

Quantitative method, specifically the exploratory type of research was used to analyze the factors that affect the students' involvement in school organizations.

The major tool used in data gathering was a validated researchers-made questionnaire which is divided into three parts. The statistical treatments that the researchers performed after data had been gathered are frequency and percentage, weighted mean and Pearson moment of correlation.

The findings shown that students have no definite reason on joining school organizations but among the three factors, the personal reason had the greatest influence on participating school organizations. The researchers also used literature and findings from other studies to support our study.
