Studying and being a helper at the same time is not easy, it is also very challenging because it is both a responsibility. Being adopted struggle with the issue of identity and privacy because it could be a talk in their school that you are adopted. Also according to her adaptation is hard because being separated with your family is hard and everything will be new like the surrounding. Being a student and a helper at the same time is basically more lot harder and much heavier responsibilities because he need to do what are the task of a student and the tasks of being a housekeeper at the same time with no help from his parent or siblings and others, you are just by yourself now.

This study will utilize case study will utilize case study its methodology. Press Academia (u.d.) defined case study as "as in-depth investigation of single individual, group or event to explore the cause of underlying principle."
